

Solutions via Search

For some artificial intelligence problems, it's advantageous to search for a solution rather than building a probability model. We can accomplish this using graphs.

Breadth First Search and Depth First Search

These two forms of graph search can produce different practical results when looking for a solution. Breadth first search may use more resources while covering each layer while depth first search may never finish traversing an infinite path.